

April 2008

New website provides wealth of information.

Hand protection expert Comasec International Group (CMIG) is providing health and safety managers, employers and workers with a wealth of knowledge surrounding hand protection with the launch of a completely updated website on 21 April, 2008.

The new site – marigold-industrial.com – incorporating the Marigold Industrial and Comasec brands exists in 7 languages and has been completely redesigned and enhanced to not only provide greater levels of information but to also make navigating around the site to find the information you are looking for much easier.

Containing detailed information on every glove within their range including performance data, relevant applications, features and benefits, sizes and order codes. The product offerings are also broken down by specific requirements – for example chemical, cut and mechanical resistance to make choosing the right glove for the job even easier.

In addition, the new site is also home to Marigold Industrial's recently launched Chemical Recommendation Guide, allowing users to search by glove, chemical, glove material or minimum permeation requirements to identify the best gloves for the job from the chemical protection product range, against over 100 of the most commonly used workplace chemicals.

Full information on new products, a monthly update from the technical experts, an overview of the European Standards and the ability to sign up to the company's newsletter, "HAP Review" makes the new CMIG website an essential tool for anyone requiring or with the responsibility for hand protection.

"The key things about the new website is the simplicity in which the new information is delivered and the ease of navigation. By breaking the site down by product, glove protection requirement, right down to order codes, you can very quickly identify which gloves are the right ones for the applications required, their performance guides, CE scores and features and benefits.

"This is all backed up by a wealth of technical information such as our comprehensive chemical recommendation guide which is again, extremely easy to use, delivering the information in a very straightforward manner, making the site an extremely valuable hand protection reference point," said Group CRM Manager, Sébastien Morin.

"We are delighted with the new site and already plan to make further enhancements over the coming months, along with regular updates on product developments," he added.
