Lights, camera, action for new CMIG Corporate DVD

The qualities that go into manufacturing market leading Hand and Arm Protection products have been captured in a brand new DVD produced by glove specialist Marigold Industrial® and its parent company Comasec International Group (CMIG).

The new DVD enables viewers to see for themselves the R&D, manufacturing and environmental qualities that combine to make Marigold Industrial® and Comasec® a world leader in industrial Hand and Arm Protection.

According to CMIG's International Marketing Manager, Donald Gillespie, the new DVD provides the perfect platform to enable customers, suppliers and distributors to see inside the world of CMIG and understand not only how its products are manufactured but the level of quality control and environmental processes, the focus on high quality standards and the continual investment in new product research and development.

"With manufacturing plants in Portugal and Malaysia and operations worldwide, it is difficult for people to understand just what is involved in being a global leader in Hand and Arm Protection and how the qualities that we invest in the production of our products are passed onto our customers.

"But the DVD does this job superbly and really drives home the message that we are not simply a manufacturer of industrial safety gloves and sleeves, but are at the forefront of the industry, setting the very highest standards and passing those standards, through the quality of our products, onto our customers.

"In a market that is increasingly competitive, we felt it was important that people understand just what is invested by us to strive to achieve our mission 'To keep working hands safe so they can enjoy what life brings' and we are delighted with the results," said Donald.

The DVD also includes quotes on the quality of the relationship between Marigold Industrial and its distributors such as Stauffer Gloves and Safety in the USA, whose Vice President Jeff Stauffer said of Marigold Industrial.

"We always look for a professional company with high levels of professionalism and integrity, a company that will help us provide solutions for our customers and we have that with Marigold Industrial. They work closely with us and provide a personal service that adds value to what we can provide our customers. If I had to describe Marigold Industrial in a word, it would be Trust."
